

PEACE AS A DISASTER

From time to time rumors circulate that Russia is on the verge of a revolution.

Quite recently the Christian Science Monitor published an interview with an unidentified Italian who had been confined in three different Russian prisons where he met various political captives. Among these he said were three former generals from the staff of Marshal Grigor zhukov, a prominent Russian figure who disappeared from sight.

According to the news dispatch, from this source it was learned that in Russia there is supposed to be a growing demand for the overthrow of the Communist dictatorship and for the setting up in its place of a more democratic government. Further development of the nation, it was argued, is being hampered by the police state.

Now, of course nothing could be more unwise than for the American people to take seriously any such vague report. As a matter of probabilities, it is much more likely that Stalin has had rumors of this sort spread to "soften up" the rest of the world, than it is that foreigners in Russia were able to learn such facts and escape to tell them.

The trick of "putting down conspiracies" is one of the oldest excuses of tyrants for tightening the screws which hold their subjects in slavery. If you want to bet on the matter, bet that when and if a Russian revolution comes, it will be a bolt from the blue, without the least whisper of a hint ahead of time!

But these rumors can serve another and quite different purpose. They can dramatize for the American people the degree to which we ourselves have slid over into a war economy, and the appalling extent to which a sudden outburst of world peace would be a catastrophe to us of unprecedented severity.

Just suppose, for example, that these rumors were to turn out to be true, and suppose further that one of these days you heard on the radio and read in the newspapers the astounding news that a successful conspiracy had wiped out Stalin, eliminated all of his close assistants at the top of the government, taken over the army and the state police, had set up a new government in the form of a free republic, and were busy tearing aside the iron curtain so as to return to an open-door national policy with the rest of the world.

Would that be good news, or bad? What would be the effect upon us, politically and economically?

In the field of economics, any such sudden development would shake us to the foundations. Our government at this moment is spending some fifty billions a year on military purposes, all of which would have to stop if Russia ceased being what it is—the one threat to world peace. With fifty billion dollars worth of war contracts cancelled, what would happen to employment?

If peace burst suddenly upon us, our war-boom would collapse, and we would face, almost overnight, the most staggering relief burden ever heard of. There would be no cushion—the Truman Administration has so whipped private industry in the field of consumer goods that it would take months if not years for it to return to normal.

Public assistance costs would skyrocket, tax revenues would drop into the cellar. Earnings of the consuming Remaining at the Bucks County Prison to be tried for the same murder, in September, is Walter Lowrey, of Croydon.

GENERAL DE GAULLE

General de Gaulle, whose party won the largest representation in the French National Assembly, claimed the Premiership for himself. He said his party would not be a member of any center coalition.

POLICE OFFICIALS ASK AID OF CLUB IN "HOT-ROD" WAR

State Authorities Ask Keystone Auto Club to Help Curb Menace

A MENACE HERE, TOO

Many Arrests Have Been Made Here and Fines Imposed

Police officials of Pennsylvania are planning war on "hot-rodgers" and have appealed to the Keystone Automobile Club to lend support to a campaign to curb "hot-rodgers," the "flaming youth type which delights in burning the highways in stripped-down, souped-up automobiles." But the club pointed out that "the problem goes much deeper than the surface indications manifested by illegal speed."

"Hot-rodgers" in Bristol and Bristol Township have become a menace to themselves as well as the traveling public. Nightly they engage in escapades to taunt the police. Many arrests have been made in Bristol Borough and also in Bristol Township. Fines have been imposed and paid but apparently have not brought about any improvement in the situation.

WANTED MAN IS A "HOT-HEAD HOODLUM"

Wantonly Killed South Philadelphia, James DeCaro

SCALED "PEN" WALLS

This is the sixth article in a series on the "Ten Most Wanted Criminals" of 1951, as compiled by International News Service with the cooperation of the F. B. I. Today's story deals with Frederick J. Tenuto, alias "The Angel," a hot-headed hoodlum sought for murder.

By James Lee (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 23 (INS)—This is the FBI label for Frederick Tenuto: "An example of the neighborhood gang hoodlum who graduates from petty thievery to murder, from incorrigible juvenile to vicious adult criminal."

Bandid, gunman, fellow escapee of the notorious "Willie the Actor" Sutton, Tenuto is a smoldering volcano of a man whose most serious crime was the wanton killing of a South Philadelphia named James DeCaro.

The slaying grew out of bad blood between a friend of Tenuto's and DeCaro's son, Dominic. Tenuto's pal asked his aid in the feud. The friend, William O'Neill, gave Tenuto a gun.

Prowling the streets until they encountered the De Caros, Tenuto and his more timorous chum went into action and Fred killed the elder DeCaro with three shots from the revolver in his pocket. Dominic DeCaro was seriously wounded. "The Angel"—Tenuto's ironic nickname—was caught and convicted but his incarceration was brief. Using a ladder made of threaded sections of pipe, he scaled the wall of Pennsylvania's Eastern State Penitentiary.

Recaptured, he became a prison friend of Willie Sutton and was with Sutton in a spectacular escape made through a tunnel dug from a cell to a point outside the walls. The tunnel, exceptionally well constructed, was used by both.

THE WAR

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea (Sunday)—(INS)—Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet said today his Eighth Army has caused the Communist aggressors in Korea "damage without repair" and vowed that "We shall not be defeated in Korea—the efforts of the men who died in this United Nations crusade shall not be in vain."

Van Fleet, in a statement on the eve of the Korea war's first anniversary Monday, promised his troops would fulfill their mission in repulsing the enemy in the "Republic of Korea."

TOKYO, June 23 (INS)—Allied ground forces bumped into a new and stubborn Communist defense line today on the east-central front in Korea where increased Red air activity indicated preparations for a "first anniversary" offensive. Red troops were reported moving in strength into the area near Kunhwa, 18 miles north of Parallel 38, to man a new defense line. On the fringes of this area below the Red defense bastion of Kumsong, Eighth Army troops ran up against vigorous opposition from entrenched Chinese Red forces. Kumsong lies east of the old enemy "iron triangle" supply and staging area and 28 miles north of the 38th Parallel. Within the triangle Allied troops struck closer to Pyongyang than any United Nations patrols have probed since a tank force entered the town 10 days ago.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

The House passed the $7,200,000,000 tax-increase bill yesterday, after having defeated a Republican motion to recommit the measure. The bill, which now goes to the Senate, calls for a 12½ per cent rise in individual rates and higher rates on corporations and sales of liquor and other commodities.

Defense Mobilization Chief Wilson said the national defense program had advanced to the point where the country could be shifted to an all-out mobilization quickly "with a minimum of friction and delay." The National Production Authority announced new curbs on the use of steel, copper and aluminum because of the rising output of armament.

The head of the last United States military mission to China, Major General David C. Barr, told the Senate committee investigating the dismissal of General MacArthur that the Nationalist regime had been beaten by the Communists because of its own corruption, "atrocious" leadership and lack of the will to fight, and not for want of help from the United States.

Iranian Premier Mossadegh told the United States Ambassador in Tehran that his country wanted the $25,000,000 loan offered by the United States Export-Import Bank. He said he would ask Parliament to approve the loan as soon as the oil issue was settled.

In Budapest, Archbishop Groez and three associates went on trial on the charge that they had plotted to overthrow Hungary's Communist regime with United States help and confessed that the charge was true.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Gromyko charged that the "entire responsibility" for the failure of the Paris conference of the foreign ministers' deputies rested on the shoulders of Washington, London and Paris.

General de Gaulle, whose party won the largest representation in the French National Assembly, claimed the Premiership for himself. He said his party would not be a member of any center coalition.

GEOGRAPHIC ILITERATES

Several years ago, the New York Times cooked up a history test and gave it to a few thousand college students, with results that were distressing. Now the Times has tried the same stunt on geography, testing 4,752 students in 42 colleges in all sections of the country. Some of the answers reveal incredible ignorance.

Yet, as another Times survey revealed, only five per cent of college students were studying geography courses last December, and some educators felt that college students knew all the geography they needed.

Less than one per cent of the students tested could name and give the approximate population of the five largest cities in the United States. Only 1.5 per cent could name as many as four of the seven leading imports of the United States. Only 2.3 per cent could give the approximate population of Canada, this country's nearest English-speaking neighbor.

Less than half of the students, for that matter, came close to the figure for the present population of the United States. Some put it as low as a million. Others, perhaps influenced by the federal budget and debt figures, placed it in the billions. The top estimate was 20,000,000,000—more than eight times the population of the entire world.

It is difficult to say that the schools are doing a poorer job on geography than formerly, because comparable earlier tests are not available as a basis of comparison. Modern ideas of education lay less stress on memory, more on skills and understanding and ways of acquiring knowledge. What is forgotten, while the truly educated man knows how to hone up on the facts he needs.

But a geographically illiterate America is hardly fitted to solve the problems that beset it.

HIS FACE TO THE WALL

Finding in attics, barns and sometimes in antique shops or paintings of rare historical interest and considerable financial value sometimes occurs. But the last place one would look for such a find, however, if the artist were Gilbert Stuart and the subject George Washington, would be the attic of an American embassy.

Yet such a painting was found on the upper floor of the office quarters of the American embassy at Madrid, its face to the wall. The finder was Rep. James G. Fulton, of Pennsylvania, an art collector, who spotted the picture. Although neglected for years, it was in fair condition. The painting had been in the embassy since 1818.

It is amazing how a Gilbert Stuart painting of the first President could be stored in junk in the attic of an American embassy, while the American Museum of Art in New York exhibits another original of the same artist on the same subject with pride. At all events, the Madrid Stuart has been transported to Washington, where, if a place can be found, it will hang in the Capitol building.

VOLTZ TEAM STEPS NEARER TO THE CHAMPIONSHIP

The Voltz-Texaco team climbed nearer to the first half championship of the Tri-County League with a 5-1 verdict over Roychester on the latter's field.

Voltz is now leading the race by two full games with Hilltop in second place. The Voltz-men have two games to play in the half, meeting Newtown and Fallsington. Both of these games will be played on Memorial field next Tuesday and Thursday, respectively.

"Bill" McGerr hurled the gasmen to the triumph, limiting Roychester to four hits and fanning eight. He whiffed the side in the final inning. Roychester's lone marker was the result of a single by Pattinote and double by Weinberger in the first inning.

Ed Knauer blanked the Bristol boys for the first three frames. A walk and two errors permitted the tying run to score in the fourth while in the fifth two more crossed on an error followed by successive singles from the bats of Dave Morrell, Ken Heath, and Bert Barbetta. The final two tallies were made on hits by Morrell, Bert and Fred Barbetta and a fielder's choice by Ken Heath.

Bert Barbetta and Morrell had two hits each with the former driving in three runs.

overpowered guards and, using ladders tied together, fled over a 40-foot wall. He has been a fugitive ever since.

He has been identified as the top criminal in a series of robberies, assaults, and similar depredations. Since his escape, the FBI has received word that he carries two guns stuck under his belt and that he has said he will be taken again only if he is "shot in bed."

Here are aids to identification of the vicious killer:

Aliases—Leonard Durham, Leonard Durken, John Thomas Lestella, Frank Pinto, Durso Thornberry, "St. John," "St. Johnny," "The Angel."

Habits—He is an amateur boxer, and likes football, baseball, and basketball; reads adventure stories, likes radio programs, goes to the movies; has a "smoldering" disposition, and is something of the "wallflower" type, preferring to sit by himself until he has sized up other members of a group.

Description—Age, 36; height, five feet, five inches; weight, 143 pounds; hair, black; eyes, brown; complexion, dark; tattoos "S. J." on left forearm, "Ana" or "Anna" or "Ama" on right forearm; small brown mole on right cheek; scar over right eye, large burn scar on chest.

Warning: Has boasted he will not be taken alive. Believed to be armed and considered extremely dangerous.

To Share Experiment In International Living

Miss Marian Monaco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Monaco, 173 McKinley street, a teacher at Connecticut College, will sail Tuesday for Italy aboard the "Volendam" from Montreal, where she will spend the summer as a group leader under auspices of "The Experiment in International Living."

Miss Monaco is one of 410 young people from 37 states of the U. S., from California to Maine, who will follow The Experiment's unique plan of living during the first month of the summer in the home of a "foreign" family, where there is a member of her own age, and the second month exploring the scenic and cultural points of importance of the country in the company of the state-side members of this Experiment group and their foreign hosts. Thirteen countries of Europe, Brazil, Colombia and Mexico will open their homes to these young Americans, whose ages range from 16 to 30. For the first time in its 20-year history The Experiment will send a group to Yugoslavia and to Brazil. Also, for the first time, a group of adults will go Experimenting.

Purpose of these Experimenters is to make friends and thus foster better international understanding at the personal level. They go to learn, not to teach. They talk the language of the country they visit and are treated as members of their adopted families rather than as guests. Participation in regional sports, folk customs and travel about the country in the company of their hosts gives them an insight into the culture, and an understanding of the people and customs seldom gained by the average tourist.

The Experiment has in 20 years sent some 3,000 Americans abroad to 25 countries of Europe, Latin America and Asia. Experiment headquarters are in Putney, Vt., with branch offices in San Francisco and Paris.

Hearings End in Fight For Bus Franchises testify about a number of checks mentioned in the previous hearing.

The earlier testimony had been given by C. Donald Moyer, treasurer of the Bristol Trust Co., who had been subpoenaed by Nathanson. Moyer had testified that 13 checks written by Mrs. Larrisey were returned due to insufficient funds.

Graf asked Mrs. Larrisey if those checks had been made good.

She answered, "yes."

When pressed by Nathanson on the methods, Mrs. Larrisey produced the cancelled checks and said:

"In some cases I cashed them, and in other instances they were cleared through the bank and re-deposited."

Jay Eisman, who conducted the hearings as PUC examiner then adjourned the proceedings. Both attorneys were given time to file briefs to the Public Utility Commission, for consideration at a later date.

A spokesman said a PUC decision would probably not be forthcoming until the fall.

Both Neibauer and Mrs. Larrisey issued statements to a reporter following the hearings.

Neibauer said:

"The Neibauer Bus Company has been operating bus transportation in lower Bucks county for over 15 years, supplying the needs of the riding public. From time to time, the company, when it receives requests from residents for additional service does everything in its power to supply such additional need after careful survey."

"Of course at times, people request service which the company regrets it cannot supply from the viewpoint of the company's operations.

"The application pending before the PUC becomes necessary because of the development of the area in Falls township by U. S. Steel. The company is ready, willing and able to commence service at any time now by reason that it has been given temporary rights by the PUC, as soon as officials of the steel company advise us what schedules are needed."

Mrs. Larrisey said:

"I hope my application will be approved because I can thus serve the people in Maple Beach and Tullytown who have no service whatsoever. The people have asked us for service, and I am hoping the Public Utility Commission will approve my application in order that I may render this service to these people who need it so badly."

"I am already passing these neighbors daily with closed doors, and it would not involve any additional expense to render them service."

played on the farm of former U. S. Senator Joseph R. Grundy, was born May 2, 1931. He was 19 when he met death.

A silver star medal had been awarded posthumously to his parents in honor of the young man for heroism in combat in Korea.

The presentation was made by Col. G. V. Sotomang, acting Pennsylvania military district chief. The young man, an infantryman with the 24th Division, was honored as a radio operator who stuck to his post to the last during an enemy attack on July 11, 1950, near Chonan. A citation accompanied the award. The citation told how Underdown, being subjected to heavy enemy machine-gun fire, jumped into a fox-hole, and from that position alternately operated his radio and fired his weapon in order to hold his position.

Croydon Soldier Joins Hdq. Staff at Ft. Knox

FORT KNOX, Ky.—First Lt. C. Mark Barnard, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Barnard, of 147 Clover avenue, Croydon, Pa., has joined the headquarters staff of Army reserve officers at the five-state Organized Reserve Corps - National Guard training camp here this summer.

On a three-month stint of active duty during the camp's operation, Barnard is now serving as medical and billeting officer while civilian component units from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Maryland, Ohio and Kentucky undergo two weeks of training each. Some 9,000 men from the five states will train in cycles during the summer.

Barnard, who obtained his commission from the Army's Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga., is a student of Georgetown University's Foreign Service school, Washington, D. C.

Peace As A Disaster

public would collapse. Earnings of capital investments would disappear.

There would be the most frightful mixture of acute scarcities in the midst of terrific oversupply. Take farm crops, for instance. The economic disturbances would have the effect of freezing these on the farm. The consumers would have no money to pay for them at the artificially high prices they would have to bring to cover the artificially high costs. The government would have no cash on hand to finance the operation. As between trying to ship the goods and sell it at ruinous prices, or letting it rot where it stood and swallow the losses, the farmers would have no choice. They would do what they have done countless times before in history—let the money crops go, and concentrate on salvaging enough to meet their own personal needs.

One way and another, the same effects would be noted in all other lines of production. Despite large overstocks in factories and warehouses, the dislocations would be so great that the machinery of distribution would collapse. Essential goods would be in drastic shortage in the stores, even though heavily overstocked at the plants.

Resulting would be tremendous and uncontrollable social tensions. Labor unions would, naturally, fight against a wage roll-back. Professional workers, the "white collar class," just at present lagging behind in pro rata earning capacity, as always happens during inflation, would find their fixed incomes suddenly a great blessing, and, temporarily at least, would be the beneficiaries of the upheaval.

But these tensions would be nothing by comparison with the impact upon our financial structure. We already are overburdened with debt and taxes—the debts exceed our total value as a going concern (measured in honest dollars) and the taxes much exceed the total national income in some years within the past two decades.

The one thing which has kept our government going financially for the past few years has been the carefully nurtured military emergency, in which we have been and are frantically getting ready to fight World War III.

This has been an artificial stimulus—dope. Sometimes gamblers "needle" a horse into winning a race, and our leaders have been giving us the needle to keep us going at the ruinous pace—stimulating us with fear and envy, to keep the forces of deflation and readjustment from relaxing our economy into a pace it can maintain.

The war scare has been the dope—take it away, and what will happen to us is what happens to any dope-addict whose supply of drugs is suddenly stopped. We will suffer a breakdown.

As we noted above, none of this is going to happen—not, at least, in the fashion just outlined; for the possibility of any such revolution in Russia, during the lifetime of this generation, is fantastically remote.

But reflecting upon the possibilities is a good way for us to perceive how far we have drifted into an artificial, "planned" government where, as is the case with Russia, our further development as a people and as a nation is, being caught in the deep-freeze of dictatorship and planned economy.
